Ventilation Upgrade

To whom it may concern,

The ventilation upgrade project at Rambler Metals & Mining started in late fall of 2016 and was put on hold for the winter, commencing again in early spring of 2017. The project is coming to a close now at time of writing.

This project required a considerable amount of civil work, which included, but not limited to, construction of forms for footings, piers, vent raise collar, etc. which amounted to the use of more than 300 m³ of concrete. CSJ Mine Services were contracted to do this work and performed exceptionally well. I found the CSJ employees great to work with and would go above and beyond to get the job done. They abided by all of Rambler's safety standards and were very punctual and professional.

I would have no hesitation in contracting CSJ Mine Services for any upcoming projects that I may be involved in.

Respectively,

Ed Hennebury
